

“Right-Sizing”

A construction company was hit hard by the current state of our economy. Like many businesses they have faced the challenge of “right-sizing” their employee count. This was a huge cost saving for them; however they still had a large office and small datacenter to deal with. The customer decided to consolidate and move their entire datacenter into our co-location facility. Using Co-Location Las Vegas’ managed co-location services, virtualization, consolidation, and HP Blade technologies they were able to shrink their datacenter from 2-3 racks down to just 16U. They moved their equipment into our co-location facility to provide highly redundant, power, cooling, and internet for their multiple offices in multiple states. They now have better performance and reliability as well as they were able to shrink their facilities overhead by downsizing their office. They now save money monthly with less power, internet, and office rent overhead.
